Sweet treats for sour acts

Sucking toes, licking portable-toilet walls, pole dancing: Markham parents appalled to hear what some day-campers were dared to do

Children were rewarded ice cream bars at a Markham day camp last summer for such things as pole dancing, taking off their clothes and sucking a counsellor's toe, the Toronto Star has learned.

One Markham mother (whose name is being withheld to protect the identity of her children), said she knew something was wrong when her 12-year-old daughter and her friend were tight-lipped after she asked about their third day at the Town of Markham-operated Camp Chimo.

"They just looked at each other and said, 'We can't tell you,'" the mother said.

When she asked them why not, the girls — who were enrolled in the first two-week session of the Voyageurs program for 12- to 14-year-olds — told her their counsellors had said not to tell their parents what they'd done that day.

"When a male adult counsellor asks a 12-year-old girl to suck his toe and I'll give you an ice cream bar, that's sick."
MOTHER OF GIRL SENT TO CAMP CHIMO

"And then I said, 'Well, you have to tell me,'" she said.

The girls said they'd played a game called "What would you do for an ice cream bar?" where campers were split into groups and were rewarded with treats for completing various tasks.

First, her daughter told her she'd licked the inside of a portable toilet wall.

"The counsellor said if you do that, you can earn an ice cream bar," she said her daughter told her.

Her daughter said she'd also rubbed ash from the campfire on her face and washed it off in the muddy river running through Milne Dam Conservation Park.

The camp was being held in the park, off McCowan Road.

"And then she said, a girl laid down, she pulled up her top, I spit in her belly button and someone else drank it," the mother said. "So they were doing body shots with spit."

Markham Mayor Frank Scarpitti confirmed the game took place at the camp on July 6 and involved 38 campers.

He added the group of five counsellors range in age from 17 to 21. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Reward offered for capture of infamous Ray-Ban bandit

He is called the Ray-Ban bandit because he pulls off bank heists wearing what looks to be the popular brand-name sunglasses. And he's one of the most notorious robbers that the GTA has seen in years, pulling off 16 heists since 2009.

"We don't usually get that many. At one point in time, we did," Staff Insp. Mike Earl said, adding that improved security and surveillance have brought about a reduction in serial bank robberies and bank holdups in general.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ A bank security photograph of the Ray-Ban Bandit.

This past August, he was particularly busy, pulling seven bank jobs. In all, he has shown no pattern, striking in nine police divisions.

The urgency of identifying him was brought home Thursday when the Canadian Bankers Association offered a $10,000 reward to solve the cases.

The serial robber struck first at a CIBC branch on University Avenue on Aug. 29, 2009, and surveillance cameras caught him in a hoodie but without glasses, making his face easily recognizable.

The suspect is described as white, 23 to 33 years old and five-foot-six to five-foot-nine, with a medium build and an olive complexion. He always wears a head covering and a long-sleeved shirt, perhaps covering up a scar or tattoos. He has protruding eye teeth as well. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Doc rapped for sex abuse of patient

Dr. David Stuart Lambert has been found guilty of professional misconduct, after a hidden camera caught him touching the nipple of a private investigator posing as a patient.

The private investigator was only identified as "Ms X" in a report released this week by the discipline committee of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario.

"During the course of their scheduled appointment, Dr. Lambert intentionally touched the breast of Ms X, thus committing sexual abuse of a patient," a statement released by the college said.

The discipline committee also found that the Peel Region general practitioner also violated earlier bans, including treating female patients, and seeing patients for services not covered by OHIP. His medical licence stays suspended, pending a penalty hearing. It's the third time he's been called before the committee for sexual misconduct.

Double shooting near school

Oakdale Park Middle School placed in 'hold and secure' mode until around 11:15 a.m.

A double shooting near a school in the city's north end sent two teenagers to hospital Thursday morning.

The incident happened after 10 a.m. near Oakdale Park Middle School, in the Jane Street and Grandravine Drive area.

A 19-year-old male and 16-year-old female were taken to a trauma centre. Emergency services confirmed the young man had suffered multiple gunshot wounds, which were considered life-threatening. The girl was shot in the leg. Both were later said to be in stable condition.

It appeared the suspect shot the male victim after waiting for him to exit a community centre across the street from the school, police said.

The girl was shot on the other side of the street, on school property.

Police aren't sure what the motive was for the attack. Neither victim was previously known to police.

A bystander who was at the recreation centre said he heard two or three gunshots at about 10:20 a.m. He said he went outside and saw the two victims.

"She looked like she had been shot in the ankle and was screaming, and the young man appeared to be shot in the elbow and the back," said the man, who didn't want to be named.

A window near the main entrance of the community centre, above a sidewalk dotted with evidence markers, had been shattered.

Police are seeking a young, tall male suspect.

Lagging construction angers parents

Final completion date of work at St. Pius X school is now March

ANDREW FRANCIS WALLACE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Parents, from left, Deb Solar, Joe Morse, and Wendy Brown outside the St. Pius X Catholic elementary school construction zone. They say renovations have dragged on too long and their kids are now separated between two schools.

Construction delays at Toronto's St. Pius X school have parents fuming —and saying the quality of their children's education is being affected.

"We can be upset as much as we want (over the delays) but the real cost is the kids' education," says Joe Morse, a father of two.

Parents also say while the principal has been helpful, staff at the Toronto Catholic District School Board have not done a good job communicating with them about what's going on at the elementary school in Bloor West Village.

With a Grade 3 class now set up in the gym at St. Pius, phys. ed classes are held outside — weather permitting — or in regular classrooms or a hallway.

Access to the library is also limited, parents say.

The school, which is over-enrolled for its size, was approved for a $4.3-million, seven-classroom addition, as well as renovations to an extra four classrooms.

Parents say little work was done during the summer despite a fall completion date.

Then, the week before classes began, they learned the older grades would be bussed to a nearby school, along with students in Grades 4, 5 and 6 who were relocated starting in September 2010.

The board says the age of the building has proved challenging, as well as the rainy weather this fall.

Angelo Sangiorgio, associate director of planning and facilities, added there were delays with obtaining some construction materials. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Publication ban in child porn case troubles expert

Ontario's criminal justice system entered a "risky place" by dropping a cloak of secrecy over the case of a Richmond Hill lawyer convicted of possessing child pornography, a leading constitutional law expert says.

A publication ban imposed by Justice Louise Botham when lawyer Howard Baker was convicted in Brampton in December 2009 has left "an unacceptable degree of secrecy" around his criminal case and subsequent professional disciplinary proceedings, said Jamie Cameron, an Osgoode Hall Law School professor who specializes in freedom of expression.

Nothing more than the barest details of the case can be reported — that Baker was convicted and later given permission to resign from the legal profession.

The public can't even know the sentence he received.

▶ Justice Louise Botham

"It's shocking, all these years after the Supreme Court of Canada has so clearly set out the importance of open courts."
DEAN JOBB, JOURNALISM PROFESSOR AT THE UNIVERSITY OF KING'S COLLEGE IN HALIFAX, ON THE PUBLICATION BAN

In a line of cases starting 17 years ago, the Supreme Court has said anyone wanting to restrict reporting on court proceedings must justify why it's necessary — backing it up with evidence — and that judges must consider how the merits of any ban outweigh the damage caused to freedom of expression.

When courts are closed to scrutiny, the public has no way of holding them to account, "and that's a risky place for the justice system to go," said Cameron.

Baker's defence lawyer, Nadia Liva, told the Toronto Star the publication ban was the subject of pre-trial discussions she had with the Crown and the judge, and all three agreed the ban was warranted.

Ontario Attorney General John Gerretsen was unavailable Thursday and his ministry can't comment on what happened in Baker's case because the publication ban is still in place, said spokesperson Brendan Crawley. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

City daycares on the brink: Report

Without big infusion of funding, all-day kindergarten predicted to make childcare financially unviable

Toronto's poorest neighbourhoods risk losing more than half of their daycare centres if Queen's Park doesn't ante up more child-care cash by 2014, when all four- and five-year-olds move to full-day kindergarten, a city staff report warns.

Across the city, about 400 centres — serving almost 25,000 children — are in trouble, some 2,600 subsidies may be lost and parent fees may jump by 10 per cent, says the report from the children's services division.

"The impact of (all-day kindergarten) on a system as large as Toronto's is material," says the report to be debated by the city's community development and recreation committee Friday.

"In order to effectively manage the transition, the city requires transitional, operating and capital resources from the province of Ontario, as well as legislative and regulatory amendments to the Day Nurseries Act," it says.

"If this shortfall is not addressed, a significant number of centres are likely to close for financial viability reasons," the report says.

Friday's report will also provide a ward-by-ward analysis of a child-care system on the brink.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The situation

- Toronto has been warning Queen's Park since January 2010 about the financial and operational challenges facing its 56,000-space child care system as a result of all-day kindergarten and chronic underfunding.
- As centres lose four- and five-year-olds to the school system, they need about $27.4 million to renovate their space to serve more infants, toddlers and preschoolers, the report estimates.

Garbage contractor throws city yard to curb

The savings from contracting-out garbage collection aren't quite as impressive as Mayor Rob Ford's administration says.

The administration likes to emphasize taxpayers will save $11 million a year by having a private company collect garbage from 165,000 homes.

What wasn't mentioned when the collection contract was awarded last month is the approximately $5 million spent upgrading the Ingram Yard for maintenance and parking of garbage trucks. It turns out the contractor doesn't need the facility.

As recently as January, after Mayor Rob Ford had taken office, council's government management committee adopted a staff request to increase the renovation budget by $800,000 to cover unforeseen costs.

The city offered to lease its upgraded yard to GFL Environmental East Corp., which won the collection contract west of Yonge Street. But the company has its own truck servicing and turned down the offer to lease Ingram for $444,000 a year plus utilities and $130,000 in annual property taxes. The city is now trying to figure out what to do with it.

It was surprising that GFL didn't want it, said Dave Hewitt, vice-president of CUPE Local 416, which represents city garbage collectors.

"I thought they would use that facility because it was renovated, a newly renovated state-of-the-art facility," he said.

The 2.7-hectare yard is next door to the Ingram garbage transfer station, in the Keele Street and St. Lawrence Ave. area. Coun. Frank Di Giorgio, who represents the area, said he suspects the city could use the yard for other purposes.

Nine historic buildings ready to move, literally

Interested buyers have until Saturday to view the Durham properties All sold must move by next June

Peter Stokes can only shake his head and tut-tut-tut.

"Everything has been so badly changed and mucked about," says the renowned restoration architect, sadness mixing with anger as he tours a mid-19th century stone farmhouse in north Whitby. "It's a disaster."

Stokes, who came with a client, was among the trickle of visitors to open houses on Thursday as the Ministry of Transportation offers up nine old homes for sale.

The farmhouses and an assortment of barns, workshops and coach houses of varying vintages and historical value are in the path of the Highway 407 extension east through Durham Region. Buyers can have them essentially for the price of relocation, which could run to the hundreds of thousands.

Stokes's disapproval grows with every room he inspects in the 150-year-old house that's been badly damaged by time and vandals. "What I call municipal plywood was a favourite thing in the '50s to cover cracked walls — hideous."

But he finds something he likes: the old front door and original staircase with a carved railing. Otherwise, "there's not much left," says Stokes, who has more than 50 years of experience with historic buildings.

His client, Robert Mitchell, already owns a stone house, but curiosity called. "Our thinking was, wow, there might be some wonderful trim we could look at," says Mitchell. "Any time you have an opportunity to look at a house like this, it's worth it."

Properties that aren't moved will be sold off for parts and the remnants razed, according to Stephen Fagyas, who's handling the sale for the MTO.

Canadians gripe more over wireless bills, contracts

More Canadians than ever before are complaining about telecom services, with most of the gripes involving wireless problems.

The commissioner for complaints to telecommunications services says complaints jumped by 114 per cent in 2010-11 over the previous year to 8,007. The agency is an independent, industry-financed body established by the federal government in 2007 to resolve consumer complaints.

The agency says most complaints were over billing errors or contract disputes. It suggests that much of the increase in the number of complaints is due to growing public awareness of the agency. The report urged the industry to increase consumer confidence in data measurements. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Serial killer guilty of more murders

Bodies of three strangled victims posed in sexual ways DNA evidence links LA's Hughes to killings

A man convicted of four "Southside Slayer" serial killings was found guilty Thursday of strangling three more victims in a series of attacks stretching over a decade.

Michael Hughes, 55, was convicted of three counts of first-degree murder with special circumstances for strangling two prostitutes and a 15-year-old girl during the wave of killings that terrorized Los Angeles in the 1980s and 1990s.

Prosecutors will seek the death penalty when the sentencing phase of his trial begins Monday.

The former security guard was serving a life sentence for killing four women in 1992 and 1993 when he was charged with the additional killings of 15-year-old Yvonne Coleman and two women.

Coleman had skipped school a day before her nude body was found near a park barbecue pit in January 1986. Prosecutors said she had left her boyfriend's house to catch a bus home.

Jurors found that Hughes killed her and that the crime was committed during a rape and sodomy.

Hughes also was convicted of killing prostitutes Verna Williams in 1986 and Deborah Jackson in 1993. In all three cases, jurors convicted Hughes of murder with special circumstances that he had a prior conviction for first-degree murder and convictions for multiple murders.

Task force

- Michael Hughes was investigated by a task force looking into the killings of as many as 90 women in inner-city South Los Angeles.
- Investigators concluded that at least three serial killers were stalking women during a crack cocaine epidemic that forced some women onto the streets as prostitutes in order to support their habits.

Benefit cuts spark public anger

Over 1,500 protesters, including small company owners and veterans of the Soviet War in Afghanistan, rallied Thursday protesting benefits and subsidy cuts. Ukraine is implementing austerity measures in order to qualify for an International Monetary Fund loan. The protesters broke through a metal fence and tried to enter the legislature, but were pushed back by riot police.

Co-founder of Vans tennis shoes dies of cancer aged 72

James Van Doren, the co-founder of Vans canvas shoes that were embraced by the skateboard culture and became a nationwide sensation in the U.S. when Sean Penn wore a checkerboard pair in the 1982 movie Fast Times at Ridgemont High, has died. He was 72.

Van Doren died of cancer at his Fullerton home on Oct. 12, his wife Char told The Associated Press on Thursday.

Van Doren, who was a chemist, and his older brother Paul began selling custom shoes in 1966 from their first store in Anaheim. The brothers only had sample shoes and their made-to-order shoes were often made with the canvas material and patterns brought in by customers.

The Van Doren's and two other co-founders decided the Van Doren Rubber Co. business plan was to eliminate the middleman and sell the rubber-soled shoes directly to the public.

The shoes were essential footwear for hip preteens, teens and adults.

Man overdoses at Occupy site

Heroin use at Vancouver camp blamed ◐ Paramedics help save his life

A man, who overdosed on heroin at the Occupy Vancouver camp Thursday, is lucky to be alive, says fire and rescue authorities.

"The man is extremely lucky to have had a quick first-aid response," said Vancouver Fire spokesman Capt. Gabe Roder, who also credited the on-site medic for doing a "tremendous job."

A man, who was about 25 years old, went into full cardiac arrest at around 9:30 a.m. at the Occupy protest site on the plaza outside the Vancouver Art Gallery.

"It was his friend who alerted an on-scene first-aid attendant who went to the male and began CPR," Roder said, adding Vancouver Fire and B.C. Ambulance came in shortly.

Lt.-Gov. apologizes for suicide bomber joke

PAUL DALY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ John Crosbie

Pakistan and suicide bombers may not seem the most likely comic fodder for a vice-regal function, but that didn't stop Lt.-Gov. John Crosbie.

The Queen's representative in Newfoundland and Labrador — a notoriously quotable former Tory warhorse — said Thursday he's sorry if a joke he made while swearing in cabinet ministers last week offended anyone.

It went like this: "This fellow said, 'I was so depressed last night, thinking about the economy, wars, jobs, my savings, social security, retirement funds, etc., I called a suicide hotline and got a call centre in Pakistan. When I told them I was suicidal, they got all excited and asked if I could drive a truck."'

Crosbie got boisterous laughs from the room of Progressive Conservative members at the time.

But his opening quip made headlines after the St. John's Telegram reached a Pakistan student group at Memorial University of Newfoundland. Its president told the paper that Crosbie's remarks were a shocking reference to stereotypes.

Premier Kathy Dunderdale, when asked to respond, described them in a statement as "clearly inappropriate."

Europe on brink of 'explosion'

Greece in turmoil as Greek PM dumps referendum plan ◐ Stephen Harper says summit talks moving ahead

French President Nicolas Sarkozy issued a dark warning against the "explosion" of Europe on Thursday even as the Greek prime minister abandoned his explosive plan to put a European rescue deal to a referendum.

The extraordinary day came as G20 leaders, including Prime Minister Stephen Harper, began 24 hours of talks aimed at stabilizing the global economy.

The summit in Cannes, France, was overtaken by events in Greece, where a snap decision to put an austerity package and eurozone bailout to the people for a vote had all but deepsixed the $1.4 trillion loan.

Faced with mounting opposition at home and abroad, George Papandreou withdrew the referendum call after the opposition party said they backed the debt deal.

The prospect that Greece could tumble into default and remove itself from the 17-nation eurozone, which shares the euro, horrified other G20 nations.

Sarkozy warned that the end of the common currency would be a catastrophe. "We cannot accept the explosion of the euro, which would mean the explosion of Europe," he said.

Leave it to the pundits

Even in the middle of an economic meltdown, some people just have a way with words. Here's who said what about the unfolding Greek debt crisis:

• "Yes, the Greeks gave us the word democracy — they also gave us the word chaos." — Philip Gourevitch, The New Yorker

• "Of course, if we have consensus, we wouldn't have to go to a referendum." — George Papandreou, Greek prime minister

• "Mr. Papandreou pretends that he didn't understand what I told him. I called on him to resign. He set fires everywhere, and returned as if nothing happened." — Antonis Samaras, Greek opposition leader

• "A breakup is painful and costly, but a rotten marriage is worse." — Nouriel Roubini, economist

• "OK. I give up and throw myself on the wisdom of the crowd. Has Pappy resigned or not?! #Eurozone #greekfarce" — Andrew Neil, BBC commentator

• "Greece is collapsing, the Iranians are getting aggressive and Rome is in disarray. Welcome back to 430 BC." — Scott Gilmore, Peace Dividend Trust

• "The eurozone must absolutely send a message of credibility to the whole world … When we take decisions they must be applied, when we set rules they must be respected." — French President Nicolas Sarkozy TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Who's to blame for trying to raze Cain?

WASHINGTON. The identity of whoever leaked an explosive story about sexual harassment accusations levelled against Republican presidential hopeful Herman Cain more than a decade ago has become the biggest political guessing game in the United States this week.

The news organization that broke the story, Politico.com, isn't saying. But plenty of people are emerging to insist they aren't responsible for the leak in a titillating political mystery that's enthralling politicians, every-day Americans and late-night talk show hosts alike. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYRIA BREAKS PEACE

Broken accord latest in string of international efforts to ease uprising that has led to condemnation of regime

Syrian tanks mounted with machine-guns fired on a city at the centre of the country's uprising Thursday, defying a day-old agreement between the Syrian government and the Arab League to end nearly eight months of bloodshed, activists said.

At least 12 people were killed in the tank fire and other violence in Homs, according to two main Syrian activist groups.

A crackdown on dissent and what appears to be growing sectarian bloodshed has turned Homs, Syria's third-largest city and home to some 800,000 people, into one of the country's deadliest areas.

The opposition vowed to flood the streets Friday to test whether the regime will stop using force against peaceful protesters.

"May Friday be the day where all streets and squares become platforms for demonstrations, and for the peaceful struggle toward achieving the downfall of the regime," said a Syrian activist coalition called the Local Coordinating Committees.

The uprising shows no signs of stopping despite a government crackdown that the UN estimates has killed some 3,000 people. The capture and death of ousted Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi last month only served to invigorate the Syrian protesters, many of whom carry signs and chant slogans warning President Bashar Assad that he will be the next dictator to go.

The latest bloodshed cast a pall over the Arab League accord announced Wednesday in Cairo.

Under the plan, the Syrian government agreed to pull tanks and armoured vehicles out of cities, stop violence against protesters and release all political prisoners. Syria also agreed to allow journalists, rights groups and Arab League representatives to monitor the situation in the country.

A spokesman for the Syrian opposition in Cairo, Momen Kwafatiya, said Syria's approval of the Arab League proposal is a manoeuvre to avoid having its membership suspended or frozen in the Arab body, something that Gulf countries have quietly been pushing for.

▶ A handout picture released by the Syrian Arab News Agency (SANA) shows Syrian soldiers carrying the coffins of 13 comrades, who were allegedly killed in recent violence in the country, during a mass funeral at the military hospital in Homs, north of Damascus on Thursday.

Tensions rise as crackdown escalates

For many Syrians, the uncertainty over the future is cause for alarm in a country with a fragile jigsaw puzzle of Middle Eastern backgrounds including Sunnis, Shiites, Alawites, Christians, Kurds, Druse, Circassians, Armenians and more.

Although Assad's hold on power appears to be firm for now, he is taking increasingly desperate measures to safeguard his grip. Syria has planted land mines along parts of its border with Lebanon and disrupted Internet and telephone service. Some activists have accused Syrian security forces of arresting wounded protesters and even the doctors who treat them.

Syria's Minister of Health, Wael Nader Halki, denied reports of security forces entering hospitals to make arrests.

"There have been no arrests from the hospitals," he told The Associated Press on the sidelines of a World Health Organization meeting in Geneva on Thursday.

Disease threat looms in flood-hit Thailand

Residents urged to leave 8 Bangkok districts, move belongings to higher ground ◗ City awash in fetid water as trash, sewage spill into the streets

Samroeng Verravanich wades through the rancid brown water in one of Bangkok's many flooded streets. The garbageman plunges a white-gloved hand into the filth, fishes out a slimy plastic bag and slings it into the red basket he's towing.

"If you have cuts, it can create infections between your fingers," Samroeng says of the dirty water, holding out a dripping hand peppered with a red rash. "My hands got infected. It hurts and it spreads too — like a virus."

As Thailand's worst floods in more than half a century continue to creep into Bangkok, mixing with water bubbling up through drains and spilling over canals, many streets have become floating landfills. Plastic bags overflowing with waste and rotten food cling to boats, cars, motorbikes and people as they slowly snake through inundated roadways. Raw sewage and animal carcasses can be seen bobbing in waters ripe for disease.

No major outbreaks have been reported since monster monsoon rains spawned floods that began swallowing areas north of the capital in late July. But experts warn the biggest health threats will likely emerge in the coming weeks after moving floodwaters subside, leaving stale pools. Mosquito-borne diseases, such as dengue fever, are a concern as well as eye infections and waterborne ailments that can lead to diarrhea and severe dehydration.

"There's a lot of danger around it... You need to keep kids out of the water, and everybody should stay out of the water as much as possible."
MARK THOMAS, UNICEF SPOKESMAN

Skin diseases and fungal infections are the flood's biggest plague so far, with nearly 100,000 cases of athlete's foot reported. Bouts of diarrhea and respiratory infections are also common, especially with many flood victims sheltering in hot, cramped sites that may not have electricity or clean water.

Some 110,000 people have been displaced nationwide and more than 400 killed, mostly from drowning, since the waters started inundating millions of farm acres before seeping into Bangkok on their way to the sea. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Worse may be yet to come: Health Ministry

Thailand has a robust health infrastructure that extends from top-notch Bangkok hospitals that draw foreign medical tourists, to an army of 900,000 community health workers who serve the most remote villages, and vaccination rates are high.

But even with all of that built-in support, Thailand's Health Ministry fears the worst may be yet to come. Cases of leptospirosis have already been reported. The waterborne bacterial infection, carried in rat and other animal urine, can seep into cuts through floodwaters and potentially kill if left untreated.

An hour well spent — the Canadian way

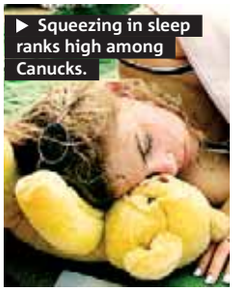
From sleep to chores, an extra hour goes a long way

Sleep, sweep or spend quality time.

That's what most Canadians say they would do with just one extra hour, according to a new Angus Reid survey.

With the clocks set to fall back an hour this weekend, the survey found a quarter of Canadians would take that hour to invest time in their relationships, while a nearly equal number would choose to catch up on chores or get some added shut-eye, at 24 and 22 per cent respectively.

Another six per cent said they would pursue personal interests or hobbies, five per cent said they would devote their precious hour to community service, and not surprisingly, a mere three per cent said they would devote the time to work. METRO



Squeezing in sleep ranks high among Canucks.

Spare an hour?

What a difference 60 minutes can make. It may even be life changing.

In a bid to inspire people to make time to volunteer, Big Brothers Big Sisters and FedEx Express Canada, who commissioned the survey, invite Canadians to join a Facebook discussion about the power of a single hour to change lives and strengthen communities at www.bbbsc.ca/facebook.

Wife wants Milgaard back: Lawyer

Charged with assault last week Ordered to stay away from home he shares with family

David Milgaard and his wife are in love and are anxious to get back together after an alleged domestic dispute, his lawyer said.

Milgaard, who spent 23 years in prison for a murder he didn't commit, was charged with assault in an alleged fight involving his wife, Cristina, last week.

Lawyer Hersh Wolch made a brief court appearance on Milgaard's behalf Thursday and had the matter put over for 24 hours.

Milgaard, who is 59 and has two young children, was released on his own recognizance after being charged. Wolch said he has been staying with friends.

Milgaard was wrongfully convicted of the 1969 murder of Saskatoon nursing aide Gail Miller and spent 23 years in prison before he was released.

DNA evidence eventually cleared his name and led to the conviction of serial rapist Larry Fisher.

Milgaard was just 16 years old when he went to prison. He and two friends, all of them young hippies, had been passing through Saskatoon on a road trip when Miller was killed.

Child porn charges dropped against soldier

A charge of possessing child pornography has been stayed against a member of the military in eastern Ontario who pleaded guilty to disgraceful conduct.

The military says Cpl. Mario Desrochers was demoted to private after a court martial at CFB Trenton on Monday.

He was also fined $2,000.

Desrochers had pleaded not guilty to the child pornography charge that was laid by the Canadian Forces National Investigation Service under the National Defence Act.

No information was released about any material seized, other than no military computer equipment was involved.

20 Desrochers is employed as an assistant air co-ordinator with the Joint Rescue Co-ordination Centre and has been a member of the military for 20 years.

N.S. premier plays down Michelin threat

Nova Scotia Premier Darrell Dexter is dismissing a media report that Michelin has threatened to reduce investment in the province because of proposed changes in labour laws.

The French-owned tire maker has three plants in Nova Scotia and has successfully fought attempts at unionization for years.

Opposition parties warned the governing New Democrats Thursday that they are jeopardizing 3,400 jobs by pushing legislation on first-contract arbitration that they say will make it easier for unions to organize.

Dexter says Michelin has always made it clear it doesn't want to see any change in current labour laws but he has not heard any threats.

The government is seeking public input on the proposed changes outlined in a discussion paper that was written by a joint union and private-sector committee.

U.S. loses final bid to extradite oldest Khadr

Supreme Court turns down federal government's plea on behalf of U.S.

The Supreme Court of Canada will not hear the extradition case of Abdullah Khadr, shutting the door on American efforts to prosecute the man in a terrorism case.

The federal government was appealing rulings by lower courts that prevented Khadr — the older brother of Omar Khadr — from being extradited to the U.S. Ottawa had argued it was wrong to prevent an "admitted" terrorist from facing trial in the U.S.

Last year, the Ontario Superior Court decided there were sufficient grounds to send Khadr to the U.S. based on self-incriminating statements he'd given the RCMP. However, the court ruled the U.S. had violated fundamental justice with its involvement in Khadr's "shocking" mistreatment during 14-months' detention in Pakistan, a decision that was upheld by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Smartphones may replace wallets

‘Augmented reality’ services overlay images seen from camera lens with information, a service or game

The arrival of two new apps signals that it won’t be long before cash and credit cards will be replaced by smartphones.

With Flow, currently only available for iPhones, users take a photo of any consumer good that Amazon can ship. The app overlays the picture with prices, reviews and ordering information. A physical store plays no part in this transaction.

Card Case turns a smartphone user into a walking cash register. Developed by Square, an online payment firm set up by Twitter founder Jack Dorsey, the app hooks up with a bricks-and-mortar store’s checkout desk, so all a customer has to do is say their name and walk off with the purchase. Billing happens electronically, once the checkout clerk has matched the user’s face with the app’s photo records.

Developed in California, Card Case is available for iPhones and Android-powered devices, but, so far, works only in the United States.

A company spokesperson said there are plans for “international markets” in 2012.

Card Case charges participating merchants a 2.75 per cent flat fee for transactions, fractionally higher than standard Canadian interchange rates posted by Visa and MasterCard.

Apple to fix iPhone 4S battery-life problem

Apple Inc. says there is a problem with its latest mobile operating system that is shortening the battery life of iPhones, iPads and iPods that use the software.

Spokeswoman Natalie Harrison said Wednesday that a small number of customers have reported lower-than-expected battery life on devices running on the company’s iOS 5 operating system.

She said Apple has found bugs in the program and will release a software update to address them in a few weeks.

The latest iPhone, the 4S, comes with iOS 5.

Other devices can be upgraded to run the software: The iPhone 3GS or 4, iPads and an iPod Touch released in September 2009 or later.

BIEBER FANS HIT SEVEN BILLION MARK

THE METRO LIST

MIKE BENHAIM
METRO

1 Count it: This week, the UN Population Fund announced the world's seven-billionth person, but when other census groups differed, the UN admitted the number was only an estimate. It seems they might just be off by 20 or so million people. No biggie. Do you think I can get one of those guys to do my taxes?

2 1-on-1: JAMOP (Just a Minute of Possibility) is an organization dedicated to uniting everyone toward the common goal of peace.

Their symbol, 11:11 points to a climactic milestone next Friday 11/11/2011 at 11:11 (See JAMOP.com).

The notion of the 1s is that if one person, in one minute, with one action can make a change, then imagine what we could achieve if everyone entered one universal, simultaneous plea. Who could argue with that, right? Religious leaders are dismissing it as we speak.

3 Pass the Plato: In 2010, "austerity" was named Word of the Year by Merriam-Webster. Coincidentally, the term is derived from the ancient Greek phrase meaning "Put it on my tab."

4 The Tortoise and his hair: Last year, Lady Gaga became the first artist to reach a billion hits on YouTube, but Justin Bieber surpassed her on his way to two billion. It was actually more impressive before I discovered that five billion people did NOT view him (give or take 20 million).

5 Never-lasting love: News of the Kardashian breakup has left us all in shock. Kris Humphries' three-year NBA contract pays him $3.2 million per year, but the NBA lockout has left him lacking. Kim, understandably irritated from the pressure of being their sole provider for what seemed like weeks, was quoted as saying, "Stop mooching, get off your ass and go to work." Can someone remind me what she does for a living?

6 What time is it?: It's Movember again. Time to get your 'stache on! Decisions: Do I go with the pencil-thin lip-liner? the thick '70s-porno look? Fu Manchu? handlebar? We know the Charlie Chaplin is out (requires too much explanation). I think the more important question is, on what basis does the idea of the moustache correlate to the prostate? On second thought, I don't want to know.

7 Required by law: Despite consistently violating probation, Lindsay Lohan manages to avoid jail time. Nevertheless, she has definitely learned a lesson: That her lawyers are better than Martha Stewart's but not quite as good as Casey Anthony's.

8 Dazed and confused: Health Canada is lobbying to shift the responsibility of approving medical marijuana away from themselves and over to our doctors. Representatives at Frito-Lay and Nabisco say they wholeheartedly support the decision.

9 On the bright side: I have a year to re-evaluate next year's Halloween costume. My wife and I were thinking of going as Jay-Z and Beyoncé, but now we're not so sure.

Letters

Just think of yourself starting out in the morning, taking your young daughter to school and then heading off to work.

Sounds like a nice start to the day, when all of a sudden some crazy woman comes racing up to you in your driveway, scaring the hell out of your daughter and yelling something at you that you're not quite sure what she's saying.

Well, that's what happened to my mayor who by the way has received death threats for doing his job. He turned around and took his daughter back into his house and called 911. When nothing happened after a while he called again and was obviously a little frustrated (Who wouldn't be?) His language got a little colourful and under the circumstances whose wouldn't be?

When I saw this woman's picture in the newspaper I didn't recognize her because I don't watch the program that she is on. Maybe Rob doesn't watch it either.

Media should start looking at a picture from both sides not just the side that makes the big headlines no matter how unpopular that might be.

Celebs cash in on 140 characters

Rapper Snoop Dogg gave props on Twitter to an ad for the Toyota Sienna minivan. Actress Tori Spelling linked to a website for rental cars. And reality TV star Khloe Kardashian soliloquized about the brand of jeans that accentuates the famous Kardashian derriere.

"Want to know how Old Navy makes your butt look scary good? Ask a Kardashian," the reality TV star tweeted, on the social media website.

Stars can get paid big bucks — sometimes $10,000 US or more per post — to pontificate about clothes, cars and movies in the 140 characters or less allowed per tweet. That adds up to about $71 US per character.

Twitter, which in its five-year existence has reshaped how people shop, vote and start revolutions, is now changing the business of celebrity endorsements. Just as Match.com and eHarmony pair up singles for dates, a growing number of startup firms are hooking up companies with stars who get paid to praise products to their thousands — sometimes millions — of Twitter followers.

Want a tweet from Khloe Kardashian? That will cost about $8,000 US, according to prices listed by social media marketer Izea. Looking for a cheaper option? Ray J is about $2,300 US. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stealing laughs

Fine ensemble of comedy actors saves the hackneyed plot of Tower Heist

Reel Guys
RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Richard: Mark, it's nice to see Eddie Murphy in a movie that allows him to drop his beloved family entertainer guise and bring back some of the bravado that we loved in movies like 48 Hours. It's just too bad the movie feels like it was made 30 years ago. Despite its Bernie Madoff storyline it feels old-fashioned.

MB: Of course it feels old-fashioned. It's an Eddie Murphy movie circa 1990. If not for the hairstyles, you could almost believe it was an unreleased film from that era finally freed from some legal limbo. But you have to admit, it's great to see Murphy doing the kind of work he should have been doing over the last two decades. So, sure the plot feels hackneyed. But it's the fine ensemble cast that makes this thing click. My favourite? Matthew Broderick. Yours, Richard?

RC: For me it was Michael Pena. Great comic timing, perpetual dazed look on his face. He and Murphy were the high points for me. It was interesting, however, to see Ben Stiller as the straight man to Murphy's wisecracks. Loved hearing Murphyisms like, "I will blow your face clean off your face!"

MB: Well, I haven't liked Stiller in anything for quite a while, and I appreciated his comic restraint here, penance perhaps for all his shameless mugging in those Night at The Museum movies. I will admit the whole enterprise does have a retro vibe, including Tea Leoni and Alan Alda in key roles, but Gabourey Sidibe freshens up the cast in a comic turn a million light years from what she did in Precious.

RC: She is a pleasant surprise. I just couldn't shake the feeling that the actual robbery, despite a few twists here and there, was completely unbelievable. I don't mind suspending part of my disbelief but the sheer lunacy of the crime took me out of the movie.

MB: I went with it because it was fun, if not credible. But I must say I enjoy the irony of any film that critiques the class system in America starring actors each worth half a billion dollars.

How to cast Greek gods

Immortals director Tarsem Singh explains why he cast fit young specimens instead of bearded old men as Greek gods Expects some audience backlash for his decision

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

HANDOUT

▶ Tarsem Singh says he cast his Greek gods as young and fit because he reasoned anyone who could live forever would want to stay at their peak.

Visionary Indian director Tarsem Singh is known for his bold visuals — as seen in his previous films the Cell and the Fall — so a fair amount of spectacle is to be expected for his take on Greek mythology, Immortals. But the boldest visuals might be the gods themselves, portrayed here as fit, young specimens instead of the usual bearded old men. It's an approach Tarsem knew would be controversial — though he admits he wasn't prepared for just how much blowback he'd get.

Your Greek gods are a lot more fit in this movie than we're used to seeing.

Immortals is an action flick, and I decided it wasn't going to be CGI flying and fighting and pointing fingers and lightning coming out from people's fingers. Once I decided I wasn't going to go there, I needed physically fit specimens. So I just said OK, why would I go young with them? And I started to look for reasons, and the reason just being that if you wanted to live forever, nobody wants to look old and miserable and be carrying a catheter around in later-on years. So I said at the peak is where you'd like to stay. And also that solved a lot of questions which in the end in the movie didn't make it that much — the idea of all these Greek guys having incest and all that. It just made much more sense if you had body beautiful. You'd be sleeping with the daughter. We had a lot of that, and people balked against it. It makes a lot more sense. If everybody looked really beautiful and didn't age, the daughters would have to move out of the house.

Greek mythology is very soap opera-y.

Very! And for most people, they don't see it as that. They're just, "No no no! Zeus was this mighty guy, a voice of reason." The guy who got pissed off at everybody else and kept killing the wrong people? And then slept with so-and-so's daughter, so-and-so's son and everything? And then Poseidon coming down and impregnating people through water? It's just like, no they were nasty f—ups. And basically soap opera is the right thing.

What did you think of the most recent depiction of the gods in Clash of the Titans?

Clash was unfortunately so hurried in competition, funnily enough, with us — just thinking that it had to come out before that. I said I had no interest in competing with a juggernaut that has three times my budget. If they want to turn something like that out, that's fine. But I don't know how to do gods turning cauldrons and going, "What are the humans up to?" That's so dated. People deal differently with gods. Ours, I see a lot of people actually going negatively against it, saying it's such a fascist thing. It's usually older people or people just thinking wisdom only comes with age — or when you're old-looking. I say yes, wisdom can come with age, but I know a lot of stupid old people.

Billy lives on

War veteran character goes from the stage to the big screen

AARON VINCENT ELKAIM/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Veteran Canadian performers John Gray and Eric Peterson are still willing to battle future incarnations of Billy Bishop Goes to War.

Their lauded, long-running stage musical — which is now a film that opens Friday in Toronto and other cities later this month — depicts the life of First World War flying ace Billy Bishop of Owen Sound, Ont.

When it debuted in 1978, Peterson played Bishop as a young man who'd just returned from war. Gray accompanied on piano and sang along with him.

"The film is a very, very small capsule of the intensity of the time that formed him and how he looks back on it so many years later."
DIRECTOR BARBARA WILLIS-SWEETE

Over the years, they've revived the show around the world and updated it to suit their ages: a 1998 version depicted Bishop as a war veteran, and the latest incarnation has a 62-year-old Bishop in the last year of his life.

Now both 65, Gray and Peterson — who won a Governor General's award for creating the show — say they're open to the idea of exploring Bishop's life from yet another angle.

"We are older than Billy Bishop ever lived to be but ... this is the world of theatre and film, where everything is possible. So yes, there could be another chapter," Peterson said in an interview at last September's Toronto International Film Festival, where Billy Bishop Goes to War screened.

"I'm actually secretly practising with a walker, you know, and a wheelchair," the former Corner Gas star added with a cackle. "I'm sure that we could do something with this."

"He wants a trap door (that) opens and flames come out," interjected Gray.

"And we come out from hell to enact the story of my life," replied Peterson in jest.

"Who knows, eh? Who knows. Or maybe we'll just be like the two old guys sitting in the audience going, 'I love this play! We were in it once, you know!' ... I don't want to give up the notion that there's some future production of it."

British Columbia native Barbara Willis-Sweete directs the feature film version of the story, written and composed by Gray and Peterson.

Shot in summer 2010, the film is set in an empty theatre, on a stage designed to look like an attic. A pyjama-clad Bishop (Peterson) reminisces about his life while Gray provides the music.

Surrounded by model airplanes, war medals and an old projector, Bishop describes how he came to enlist in the military and went into war at age 20. He wasn't keen to join the fight but when he got a chance to fly, he felt like a king.

"I think for him (flying) made war more palatable because it's abstract up there and you don't actually face the blood and the guts," said Willis-Sweete, who's seen all the incarnations of Billy Bishop Goes to War over the years.

"But he was transformed completely when he actually saw someone die — when he actually saw the results of what he was doing."

By the end of the war, Bishop had become a pacifist, she added. Later in his life, he was plagued by alcoholism. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Skarsgård longs for Sweden

True Blood star enjoyed shooting latest film, Melancholia, in his native homeland

RICHARD CROUSE

HANDOUT

▶ Alexander Skarsgård stars opposite Kirsten Dunst in Melancholia.

Alexander Skarsgård is homesick.

The transplanted Scandinavian heartthrob, best known as Eric, True Blood's sexiest vampire, lives in Los Angeles, but pines for his childhood home.

"I miss my family," the 6'4 actor says. "They're all in Stockholm. My parents are divorced but they both live in Stockholm. I have six siblings and they all live in Stockholm. Huge extended family… we're all very close. So it is tough being that far away."

Life in his new home has been an adjustment. "It's been difficult," he says. "I've been there on and off for seven years now. I like California. I like Californians. The weather is great, however, I do miss the seasons. When you've been there for a while you realize they do have seasons in California, but the changes aren't as dramatic as they are in Scandinavia.

"In Sweden you really feel how it changes, and there's something about that I love. In a weird way you feel how time is moving forward. Sometimes in California I wake up and I don't know if it is February or June. In Sweden it is so brutal; nature, how it dies and then the rebirth. That kind of cycle. I do miss it. But the grass is always greener because when I'm in Sweden for a winter and it is five months of darkness I'm like, 'Oh man! Where's the sun? I wish I was in California.' So I'm always complaining I guess."

Weather aside, he doesn't have that much to complain about these days. True Blood continues to take a bit out of the ratings and his new film, Lars von Trier's Melancholia — he plays Kirsten Dunst's husband in this dark end-of-the-world drama — won an award at Cannes. But more than that, shooting the film reunited him with his much-missed family.

"Lars shoots all his movies in Sweden," says Skarsgård. That meant he got to see his family —"On weekends I had rental cars and I drove up to Stockholm to see my mom and siblings."— and work with "one of my best friends"— his father, the celebrated Swedish actor Stellan Skarsgård.

"I'm at an age now where we're buddies," says the thirty-five-year-old Skarsgård. "I have a great deal of respect for him as a human being and as an actor so it was just lovely."

A Very Harold & Kamar 3D Christmas
Genre: Comedy
Director: Todd Strauss-Schulson
Stars: Kal Penn, John Cho, Neil Patrick Harris

Say this much for a Very Harold and Kumar 3D Christmas: It certainly helps you forget the duo's second outing, Harold & Kumar Escape from Guantanamo Bay, ever happened. This time around, the loveable honour roll stoners (John Cho and Kal Penn) are dealing with growing older and growing apart and taking on the holidays. The brisk comedy works best when it walks that fine line between skewering holiday classics and reveling in downright filth. It's a careful balance, and the filmmakers don't always maintain it. (A tribute to a key scene in a Christmas Story involving a frozen pole and one of Harold's more sensitive areas is particularly line-crossing.) But all in all, it's good filthy fun.

Of course, what everyone's really here for is some naughty Neil Patrick Harris action, as his cameo in the first film helped make it a cult classic and relaunch his career. And he doesn't disappoint here, poking fun at his public image and even getting husband David Burtka in on the fun. His slice of screen time, including a festive, kick-line-filled song and dance followed by NPH sexually assaulting a Rockette, is the highlight of the film.

NED EHRBAR

The Way
Genre: Drama
Director: Emilio Estevez
Stars: Emilio Estevez, Martin Sheen, Deborah Kara Unger
●●●½

In The Way Martin Sheen plays Tom, a complacent optometrist whose adult son (played by his real-life son Emilio Estevez, who also directed) is killed in a freak accident while making a spiritual journey on the El camino de Santiago from France to Spain. After collecting his son's ashes in France Tom decides to continue his son's journey and walk the 800 plus kilometre pilgrimage.

Estevez has made a heartfelt, life-affirming film with beautiful scenery, complex characters but just a few too many walking montages. The characters walk and walk, which is fine because mostly they are going somewhere both physically and mentally, but fewer steps might have made for a tighter film.

Like Crazy
Genre: Drama
Director: Drake Doremus
Stars: Anton Yelchin, Felicity Jones
●●●½
The immigration department gets in the way of an affair between an L.A. furniture maker and a British student due to head home when her visa expires. She doesn't, and opens up a world of hurt for them. While their enforced separation is bittersweet, and filled with longing, reality socks them into anxious reality. They begin the legal process and a new enemy arises — time. Can love stand the test? Heart-wrenching, often improvised performances make these spoiled kids relatable, and we viscerally feel their pain. Like Crazy is emotionally strenuous and rewarding.

Le Havre
Genre: Comedy
Director: Aki Kaurismaki
Stars: Andrew Wilms, Kati Outinen
●●●●
The Finnish director Aki Kaurismaki is a kind of dour deadpan genius, and if Le Havre isn't quite as funny as his previous work, it's no less charming. Set in a French port city shot and lit to look like a Hollywood backlot, the film concerns a kind old shoe shine man (Andre Wilms) who becomes the guardian of a foreign-born orphan; as the community rallies around a vulnerable outsider, Kaurismaki crafts a utopian portrait of an inclusive, generous European society. The climax, set at a benefit concert featuring a wizened local rock and roller, is ecstatic and hilarious.

Capturing 1960s sweaty, soul energy

- Fitz and the Tantrums don't adhere to the rigidity that some artists do
- The kinetic energy and unique style set them apart from the usual pack

▶ Fitz and the Tantrums are setting themselves apart from the crowd with their unique style and sound.

Everything about Michael Fitzpatrick is befitting of a man who fronts a band called Fitz and the Tantrums. In performance, he's a dancing machine, and in conversation he's quick with a quip and prone to emotional reactions.

"Nobody gives anybody in rock 'n' roll sh-t for being in the 10 millionth rock band," he says when the topic arises of other contemporary soul-influenced acts like Mayer Hawthorne, Sharon Jones and the Dap-Kings.

Fitzpatrick has only kind words for his peers, and he's keen to point out that within the genre, "everyone's doing their own thing."

As far as Fitz and the Tantrums are concerned, that's certainly true.

"We don't adhere to the form as rigidly as some of these other artists do, and I love their music. That's just not what we wanted to do," he says. "We wanted to do something that was more of a hybrid. We just weren't afraid to let something that felt like it was outside of the character of soul music make its way onto the record."

What's immediately apparent from the band's 2010 debut, Pickin' Up the Pieces, is its kinetic energy. Instruments interlock without intruding upon each other and Fitzpatrick and co-singer Noelle Scaggs both constantly move in the centre of it all. He dresses like Don Draper and sings like an angrier Daryl Hall, and she has the style and harmonic capabilities of all of the Supremes in one.

"From the very first show, we started moving around, because the music was making us dance," says Fitzpatrick. "And very early on, Noelle and I started to push each other. And now it's to the point where she and I just do not stand still for one heartbeat. And when you're in a hot, sweaty little dance club, I soak my suit through every single night."

First time

Fitzpatrick recalls the magical first time the band played Boston last winter at Brighton Music Hall.

▶ Quote "It was a city we had never played before and we didn't have any radio stations playing us, and for us to come there and sell out a club, we were pretty blown away."

THE MAKE OR BREAK TIME OF YEAR FOR MUSIC

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

Whether you're looking for some gifts for others or yourself, here are some upcoming releases.

With Thanksgiving and Halloween receding in the rear view mirror and with Christmas displays everywhere, it's time to look ahead to the final weeks of new releases for 2011. The fourth quarter is make-or-break time for labels and music retailers, which is why so many big-name releases are held back for the Christmas shopping season.

Florence + The Machine - Ceremonials (Out now):

Fantastical sophomore record that neatly bridges all the gaps between Adele, Tori Amos and Kate Bush.

Lou Reed and Metallica - Lulu (Out now)

The Grumpiest Man in Rock and 'Tallica collaborate on songs based on a 100-year-old German play? Uh, OK.

Noel Gallagher - High Flying Birds (Tuesday)

The British music media is in full Noel-versus-Liam mode even as both brothers hint vaguely at an Oasis reconciliation. Are they hedging their bets already?

David Lynch - Crazy Clown Time (Tuesday)

Yes, it's the Blue Velvet/Twin Peaks guy. If you're a fan of either (or Eraser Head, Dune, Lost Highway, Mullholland Drive or any of his other works), you'll appreciate what he's done here.

Drake - Take Care (Nov 15)

It's a couple of weeks late — Drake wanted to have it out in time for his birthday on Oct. 24 — but he wanted to get it absolutely right. Hence the title.

REM - Part Lies, Part Heart, Part Truth, Past Garbage: 1982-2011 (Nov 15)

REM announced their breakup on September 21 and they have a final greatest hits album in the stores less than two months later? That was quick. Either that or they knew the end was nigh a lot earlier than we were told.

Kate Bush - Fifty Words for Snow (Nov 21)

First, she made us wait 12 years between albums. Then another six. And now two albums in the last six months? Surely a sign of the Apocalypse.

#60

■ I had terrible Acne for 3 years and tried Benzoyl Peroxide, Proactiv, Aloe Vera and others. After 4 days taking the Bell natural product #60 it started to clear up my skin. My skin changed from terrible to beautiful. Mylene Theriault, 19, Sorel-Tracy, QC ■ In 2 days my son's face completely cleared up of acne. My son is 15 and suffered for 3 years. We used many products like laser, Clean Clear, Neem that did not work or burned his skin. Veronica Marden, Seminole, TX ■ Unbelievable acne free beautiful skin Last couple of years I had acne and tried every product like Murad, Proactiv and antibiotics. Results with #60 were unbelievable. Thanks for giving me beautiful skin and my self-esteem. Nelisa Royer, 28, Doral, FL ■ Within 6 days eczema cleared up completely. I believe #60 addresses the cause internally instead of the symptoms. Latifa Boutshik, 43, North York, ON ■ I had severe psoriasis over 95% of my body. Last 5 years I have stunned every doctor and dermatologist. I spent tons of money on remedies. After I got Bell #60, I've never seen anything work as fast in my life. Within 2 days I saw my skin clearing up. I'm speechless. It was inexpensive compared with what I spent before. Jessica Shantz, 25, Dawson Creek, BC ■ All statements made on the Bell website are sent by delighted users. All are real people. Most have listed phone numbers and can be called for advice. No money is paid to them. Their reward is the relief they are getting. All say #60 works within days not months, not years. It's more effective than what they used before. It is less expensive (some acne suppliers ship monthly and charge monthly, which may amount to large sums yearly). Show media some mercy

Annie Clark's album, Strange Mercy, has her back in the spotlight ◗ She struggles with the press attention

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Annie Clark has been talking a lot about her most recent album, Strange Mercy.

A lot.

When we phoned her on the road, she even let a little of her frustration slip when she put us on hold to answer the door of her hotel room.

"Hey! Come in. I'm just in f-ckin' interviews forever," we hear her say to the person at her door.

Then she returns to our call.

"Sorry, I didn't mean 'f-cking interviews,' I meant 'Interviews!" she says, trying to muster enthusiasm for hours in a long line of conversations with the press.

But who could blame the woman?

With her third and possibly most accomplished and complex work, she's had to try to define a sound that is at times gorgeously lush and melodic, then coarse and macabre a moment later.

"I think my least favourite question sometimes would be, 'How would you describe your music?'"
ANNIE CLARK ON DEALING WITH THE MUSIC PRESS

"I think my least favourite question sometimes would be, 'How would you describe your music?'" Clark says.

"I'm just like, 'You're a journalist. I think that's your job. I have no idea. If I did, I would be ghost writing awesome reviews.' I have no idea. The most I can do is make it and try to get out of the way and try to say things in interviews that don't diminish the meaning of the music for a fan."

Clark might be wise to leave so much of her work unexplained, as it is its unknowable strangeness that is one of the most appealing aspects to her fervent fans.

And while many are already anticipating her next release, don't expect the Texas native to start writing anytime soon.

▶ Annie Clark would rather just make music and not deal with the press.

"Touring takes its own special part of the brain and writing takes its own special thing, which is solitude and you don't get tons of solitude on the road, and you don't get lots of quietude" she says.

"Those things are really necessary for me to write."

Anson Mount on the bloody Hell on Wheels

- Actor dishes on gritty TV Western that's set in post-Civil War America
- Things get ugly — characters motivated by greed, revenge and a better life

AMBER RAY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

The Western is the most iconic, uniquely American genre to be churned out of Hollywood. With the debut of Hell on Wheels, it might also be the dirtiest.

"There's a lot of sunburn and dirt and mud. There's a lot of animals," leading man Anson Mount says of the Alberta set of the new AMC drama. "And there's a lot of fake blood."

Oh, is there ever blood.

Recounting the construction of the Transcontinental Railroad in post-Civil War America, the Hell on Wheels tale is one of technological advances, greed, and the plight of Native Americans, newly emancipated African-Americans (including a character played by rapper/actor Common) and immigrants.

It's told through the story of Mount's character, Cullen Bohannon, a Confederate soldier who heads west to seek revenge for the wartime death of his wife.

Far from the romantic notion of the classic Western, this series is a vivid, brutal retelling of historical fact that doesn't shy away from the ugly actions the U.S. took in the name of progress.

"I think they are always going to respond to something that is truthful. The American audience is, by and large, a lot smarter than the Hollywood people give them credit for."
ANSON MOUNT ON HELL ON WHEELS

"The first time I saw the pilot, I turned to the producers and told them, 'I think we have just made the bloodiest thing ever shot on television,'" Mount says.

He believes the series' attention to the authenticity of this tumultuous period — including its violence and language that is far from politically correct today — is something audiences will appreciate.

"I think people are more interested in reality than just a shiny object," he says.

"I think they are always going to respond to something that is truthful. The American audience is, by and large, a lot smarter than the Hollywood people give them credit for."

In other words, don't expect the good guy to ride up on a gleaming white steed with silver spurs and a million-dollar smile in this Western.

Ryan Reynolds plays himself

AND THAT'S JUST FINE BY US. The good news for fans of oft-shirtless Canadian heartthrob Ryan Reynolds — previously named sexiest man alive by People Magazine — is that he's guest-starring on a popular TV show Sunday.

The bad news for those fans? It's a cartoon. The Vancouver native will play himself on Family Guy, becoming enamoured with the loutish Peter during a visit to Quahog. (Fox, Global)

A fairy tale first date

NEW FANTASY SHOW. The whimsical Once Upon a Time is one of several new fantasies to hit the air this year. In Sunday's new episode, Prince Charming and Snow White meet for the first time. (CBS, Global)

Faring better on Fridays

SERIOUSLY. Friday night, once a TV wasteland, is now a haven for genre fare.

Over on NBC, the final season of Chuck continues with Morgan still struggling with his new responsibilities, and it's followed by a new episode of Grimm, a new drama about fairy tale characters. CTV Two, meanwhile, will air the fleet-footed actioner Nikita. THE CANADIAN PRESS

JUSTIN BIEBER: OH, BABY!

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Poor Mariah Yeater. First the 20-year-old (allegedly!) had sex with Justin Bieber, then she (allegedly!) got pregnant by him, and now she's facing the wrath of millions of hormonal girls (not allegedly!) on the Internet.

Several Facebook hate-pages have sprung up bashing Yeater and Twitter is absolutely enflamed with misspelled hate-Tweets.

If Yeater is just filing this paternity suit for attention, she's getting it.

But I find this whole claim totally unbelievable as, really, have his testes even descended yet? But then again, I thought the marriage between Kim Kardashian and Kris Humphries would last to at least six months, so I've been wrong before.

Now we know where Demi Moore likes it

According to a source, Ashton Kutcher wasn't the only one cheating

While Ashton Kutcher has come under fire due to allegations of infidelity, new reports suggest Demi Moore might be in the same boat.

According to In Touch, Moore got more than a little friendly with a young pal of Kutcher's, actor Ben Hollingsworth, one night after picking him up from a party.

"They wound up having sex in the back of the car," a source claims. "It just kept going from there."

But not too far, as Hollingsworth reportedly called off the affair soon after. "He was getting to be better friends with Ashton and he felt bad about it," the source explains.

Sex in a car? Why do we need to know these graphic details, In Touch?

Between knowing Kutcher had sex in a hot tub and Moore in the back seat of a car, it's as though the two have something against a nice, ol' bed. METRO

Gaga and Taylor Kinney: It's on!

HOOKING UP. Lady Gaga reportedly had so much fun making out with Vampire Diaries star Taylor Kinney during the shoot for her You and I video that she's reportedly decided to keep it going off-camera as well, according to Us Weekly. "They're hooking up and getting to know each other," a source says. But while the pair are said to be enjoying each other's company, it's not serious.

"Gaga can't be too committed because she works 24-7," says the source. "But she thinks he's super-cute." METRO

Masi Agricola's innovations

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

When it comes to superstar producers, the Italian wine industry has almost as many as a Justin Bieber album. There's Piedmont's Angelo Gaja, Tuscany's Giovanni di Piero Antinori and Veneto's Sandro Boscaini.

I recently had lunch with Boscaini — the President of Masi Agricola — and got a chance to talk with him about his famous wines and innovations his company brought to the industry.

It was "Mr. Masi's" father who originated the Ripasso method of wine making: A double fermentation of sorts with Valpolicella juice refermented on the semi-dried lees left over from the makings of a rich, weighty Amarone-style wine.

In 1964, the Masi Campofiorin ($17.95 - $18.99) was the first Ripasso wine to hit shelves and the current 2008 vintage carries on that long tradition. Inimitably drinkable with a smooth, raisin-meets-plum profile, it's an all-around food partner but with enough guts to stand on its own as a fall-friendly red to toast the up-coming time change.

What's with the hype over goat cheese?

In many parts of the world people eat goat cheese more than cheese from cows, and North America is catching on Upgrade your Panini

The dairy goat industry is growing by leaps and bounds in Canada.

Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada estimated goat milk production country-wide at more than 21 million litres in 2004. Today, estimates put production at close to 18 million litres in Ontario alone.

One significant reason for the demand is the "health benefits of the goat products," says Lindsay Gregory, marketing coordinator for Woolwich Dairy Inc., the largest goat cheese manufacturer in Canada. "Goat milk is lower in fat and lower in cholesterol, but it's still high in protein and calcium."

A 2005 Agriculture Canada report confirms that milk from dairy goats "has 13 per cent less lactose than cow milk and contains smaller milk-fat particles, making it easier to digest. In many cases, people with cow milk allergies have no trouble consuming goat milk."

Goat Cheese and Chopped Chicken Panini

Goat cheese, ricotta and Parmesan combine in this hearty panini. Serve it with a salad or fresh tomato slices and pickles.

Ingredients:

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) each goat and ricotta cheese
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) Italian seasoning
- 1 tomato, sliced
- 2 focaccia buns, sliced in half
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) olive oil
- 2 cooked chicken breasts, chopped
- 250 ml (1 cup) baby spinach leaves
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) shaved Parmesan cheese
- Freshly ground black pepper

Preparation:

1. In a bowl, combine goat cheese, ricotta and Italian seasoning.
2. On a grilling surface, grill tomato slices until some char marks appear. Set aside.
3. Brush one side of each focaccia slice with oil. Place two slices on a work surface, oiled side down, and evenly layer with goat cheese mixture, chicken, spinach, tomatoes and Parmesan. Sprinkle with pepper. Cover with top halves, oiled side up, and press to pack.
4. Place sandwiches on grill, close the top plate and cook until golden brown, 3 to 4 minutes. Serve immediately.

Goat facts

Here are some facts and trivia about goats:

- Goats are extremely curious and intelligent creatures.
- There are more than 300 breeds of domesticated goats.
- In Canada, the goat industry can be segmented into three distinct sectors: chevon (meat), dairy (milk) and fibre (mohair and cashmere).

AHL call-up Scrivens slams door on Jackets ◆ MacArthur helps T.O. to 2nd-straight road win

▶ Toronto's Ben Scrivens stops a shot by Columbus's Ryan Johansen Thursday in Columbus, Ohio.

Clarke MacArthur scored twice in his 300th career game, providing all the offence needed to make Ben Scrivens a winner in his NHL debut, and the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Columbus Blue Jackets 4-1 on Thursday night.

Joey Crabb and John-Michael Liles also scored for the fast-starting Maple Leaps. Joffrey Lupul added two assists.

Scrivens stopped 38 shots, including a few early that allowed Toronto to build a 4-0 lead despite playing its second game in two nights.

Phil Kessel, with 10 goals and 10 assists in the team's first 12 games, was limited to one assist.

Ryan Johansen, a rookie the Blue Jackets elected to keep on the roster this week despite triggering his 10-game entry-level contract, scored his third.

The Maple Leafs scored four goals on 11 shots against Columbus goalie Steve Mason before he was pulled in the second period.

The 25-year-old Scrivens was at his best in the opening period. He stopped Kris Russell with a blocker save at the doorstep and also stymied Rick Nash on a point-blank jam shot.

Scrivens has played 38 minor league games with the Toronto Marlies of the American Hockey League. He was 13-12-5 with a 2.33 goals-against average and .924 save percentage a season ago with the Marlies and 4-1-0 with a 2.41 and .908 this season.

21

The Blue Jackets outshot the Leafs by 21 (39-18), but were never really in the game.

He was recalled from the Marlies on Oct. 27 to back up starter Jonas Gustavsson while James Reimer recovers from a head injury.

The Blue Jackets outshot the Maple Leafs 11-4 in the opening period, yet trailed 2-0.

The Maple Leafs, who are got on the board on their first shot at the 6:09 mark. Crabb was all alone in the high slot when Lupul found him with a nice backhand feed that Crabb fired past Mason high on the glove side for his second goal in two games this season.

Late in the period, MacArthur carried the puck into the zone and his hard shot from the top of the left circle eluded Mason below his blocker, touching off a cascade of boos.

Toronto then scored in the opening minute of the second period when Liles' shot from the left dot, with Kessel providing traffic in front, slipped past Mason. Shortly after, McArthur tallied his sixth in the last five games when his shot on a 2-on-1 spelled the end of the night for the beleaguered Mason.

Colts owner not ready to give up on Manning

‘I think theoretically, you could have Peyton for two or three more good years,’ says Irsay ◐ Star QB hopes to make play in game this season

SEAN GARDNER/GETTY IMAGES

“I think to say that Peyton is done and the era is over is, to me, way, way too premature ... I don’t feel like that era is done.”
COLTS OWNER JIM IRSAY

Peyton Manning and Jim Irsay agree on one thing: The Manning Era isn’t over in Indianapolis.

Manning said Thursday he hopes to return to practice this year and still holds out hope of playing if he is fully healed from his Sept. 8 neck surgery. Irsay, the team owner, said he expects the four-time NFL MVP still has some good years in that right arm.

But there are some big questions looming in Indy.

The Colts (0-8) must decide whether to opt out of Manning’s five-year contract or pay a $28 million US bonus to keep him on the roster. And if they have a high draft pick next year, Indy also will have to decide whether to take Manning’s heir apparent, someone like Andrew Luck or Landry Jones.

“It’s something you talk about and scenarios, who could be behind Peyton and how long you want him to sit and how much money you have committed to quarterbacks,” Irsay said.

Manning hasn’t played since having surgery to repair a damaged nerve that caused weakness in his throwing arm. It was his third neck procedure in 19 months.

“I think it’s too early to bury this era,” Irsay said in an interview Thursday.

Manning told reporters that he hopes to practice with his teammates in December and play in a game later this season.

But he hasn’t been cleared for football activity by doctors. Irsay said there was less than a 50 per cent chance Manning would appear in a game this season.

“I miss playing, I really do. If I get cleared to play and I’m good enough, would I play? Absolutely,” Manning said. “I’d love to because that’s how I’m wired, that’s my job and I love my job.”

Calvillo at the epicentre of Als' decline

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

They haven't fallen far, but the Montreal Alouettes are no longer kings of the CFL mountain.

They can still finish first in the CFL East and earn a bye to the division final, but the Als have lost a step and it's shown in recent losses to Winnipeg and Calgary. Montreal's main culprit — surprisingly — has been QB Anthony Calvilllo, who may be in his final season with the most dominant team of the last decade.

It's simply unforgivable to stumble in the final weeks in games that could have earned the Als a bye to the East final, but this is not the same team, mainly due of Calvillo's spotty play.

Remarkably, the Montreal media has named Calvillo that team's nominee for 2011 Most Outstanding Player, even though receiver Jamel Richardson is the better choice. Richardson has had a great year with 12 100-yard games and some 1,700 yards receiving. You could argue Richardson's success is directly linked to Calvillo, although that can be said for any team.

Calvillo continues to pile up yards, but the team's late season swoon rests squarely on his shoulders.

Return to Prairies unlikely for Austin: Kent Austin is the popular choice of Saskatchewan fans to be the Roughriders' next coach, but it doesn't look like it will happen.

Austin, in second season as head coach at Cornell University, guided the Riders to their last Grey Cup win in 2007 and is considered a god among the flatlanders. Problem is, Austin recently issued a statement that he's happy coaching college and denied rumours the Riders contacted him about the opening.

The Riders whacked Greg Marshall after a 1-7 start this season and replaced him with Ken Miller. Earlier this week, Miller announced that he was resigning as head coach after this season.

More likely candidates include Riders defensive coordinator Richie Hall, Montreal offensive co-ordinator Scott Milanovich, Calgary OC Dave Dickenson and Stamps DC Chris Jones.

Bad news ends Argo apathy: It's a shame that it took a head shot to QB Steven Jyles to get Torontonians to pay attention to the Argos.

Jyles appeared to be knocked cold last weekend by Winnipeg defensive back Johnny Sears, who has been handed a one-game suspension. Jyles sat out last night's finale in favour of backup Dalton Bell.

Argos offensive linemen Rob Murphy and Taylor Robertson both tweeted their disgust, pecking out veiled threats toward Sears, and were subsequently fined by the league. The controversy triggered some Hogtown media to claim Sears got away easy and that a longer suspension was warranted. Not so. The CFL got it right this time and Sears will be back in time for the playoffs.

Blue Jays release Loewen to keep 'options open'

Move gives GM Anthopoulos chance to sign B.C. outfielder sooner

The Blue Jays have done Adam Loewen a favour — and kept open the option that the pitcher-turned-outfielder could be at spring training — by taking him off their 40-man roster.

Under a series of arcane MLB option/contract/free agent rules, the Jays would not have been able to sign the outfielder from Surrey, B.C., to a major league deal before the middle of next May if they hadn't released him from their roster in a move that was finalized Thursday morning.

"To keep his options open and our options open, this was the best thing," Toronto general manager Alex Anthopoulos said on a conference call, citing a "transactional rule" for the move.

"This gives everybody more flexibility right now."

With a logjam forming in the outfield there might not be room for Loewen anyway.

The Jays finished last season with a starting outfield of Jose Baustista, Colby Rasmus and Eric Thames with Rajai Davis as the fourth. Travis Snider may rejoin the mix, Edwin Encarnacion may morph into an outfielder and the Jays also have prospects.

In limited action as a September call-up, he hit .188 with a home run and four RBIs while appearing in 14 games.

FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Ricky Foley tackles Tiger-Cats wide receiver Aaron Kelly.

FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ending on a high note

After a disappointing season, Argonauts wrap things up with a convincing victory over Tiger-Cats

FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Dalton Bell throws a pass against the Tiger-Cats on Thursday.

Last game

Andre Durie ended the Toronto Argonauts' dismal season with a bang.

- Durie caught two Dalton Bell touchdown passes and the five-year veteran registered his first career 100-yard receiving game (eight receptions, 144 yards) to lead Toronto past the Hamilton Tiger-Cats 33-16 on Thursday night.
- Durie put Toronto ahead 23-16 with a 43-yard catch at 4:27 of the fourth before a Rogers Centre gathering generously announced at 20,833 spectators.
- Cory Boyd cemented the win for Toronto (6-12) with a six-yard TD run at 6:43, set up by Jasper Simmons' interception return to the Hamilton 12-yard line.
- Toronto earned its first win over Hamilton since Sept. 11 2009 and ended the season with two straight wins. But the Argos will finish last in the East Division and miss the playoffs for the third time in four years.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 The Sun in Scorpio at this time of year can make things look worse than they are. Don't take them seriously.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Someone who can usually be counted on to support you will wonder aloud if you know what you are doing.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If you push yourself a little bit harder, you will somehow get 10 times more done than you expected.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 There is no point in trying to keep whatever you're hiding from other people. Be open about it instead.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Make allowances for those who seem reluctant to get involved in whatever adventure you're planning.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 If you come across too stand-offish,it may work against long-term interests.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Personal and financial worries may be causing you sleepless nights but nothing much is likely to come of them.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Push yourself forward today and show the world what a unique and enterprising individual you are. Don't let opportunities go begging.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 You have a hugely positive outlook on life and that's good because you are going to need it.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Don't keep your hopes and dreams a secret — let everyone know what it is you are planning to do.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You have a mountain to climb but if you get started now, it won't be long before you're at the summit.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Enjoy what fate brings your way but be aware too that cycles come and cycles go. SALLY BROMPTON
